POLICY

Release planning services shall be delivered and supported by the Director of Reentry and the Facility Release Planners throughout the Department. The Director of Reentry or designee shall supervise the Facility Release Planners, specialized reentry staff, and risk reduction specialists, such as are established throughout the department, and provide them support in establishing risk-reduction-based reentry and release planning practices at all facilities. The Director shall conduct risk reduction, reentry and release planning (R3) meetings, with Facility Release Planners and other R3 staff, on at least a semi-annual basis. The Director of Reentry and statewide R3 staff shall work to develop partnerships and resources to support reentry, release planning and risk reduction throughout the department.

All offenders shall receive case management support to prepare for reentry commensurate with their level of risk and need. Facility and program placement, and case management decisions shall be made during the last 16 months (or time to serve if less than 16 months) in a manner that ensures they support the offender's preparation for return to the community. The unit team counselor shall take the lead in developing the case plan, with support from the Facility Release Planner, R3 or discharge planning specialists, community providers, and input from victim services and the Kansas Parole Board. Any special conditions of release shall be supported by the release plan, and necessary information shall be provided to the Board, parole, victim services, and any provider or support necessary to the plan, to ensure the plan is consistent with principles of risk reduction. The unit team counselor and Facility Release Planner shall work together to ensure that adequate communication occurs between the counselor and the Kansas Parole Board about conditions of release and release decisions, to ensure the release plan and KPB decisions are consistent with the offender's risk management (risk reduction and risk containment) plan..

Consistent with principles of risk reduction, and in accordance with IMPP 11-113, an LSI-R shall be completed on an offender at 16 months pre-release. The level of assessed risk and need and risk and need profile from the LSI-R shall provide guidance in preparing the release plan. After risk and needs are assessed, release planning shall begin with the completion of a release plan by the unit team counselor, prepared using a uniform format. At a minimum, offenders who score 30 or higher on the LSI-R, comprehensive case management shall be provided to address areas of risk and need prior to release. For offenders who score 30 or higher, the unit team counselor shall involve the Facility Release Planner, R3 specialists, mental health staff, other facility treatment staff, family members, mentors, and/or community and service providers, as necessary to support the release plan. Regardless of level of risk, release plans shall address residence plans and provide information relevant to the offender's successful reentry, all as set out in the procedures below. Also regardless of risk, the housing needs of the offender shall be addressed early in the release planning process, and contact made by the unit team counselor (in collaboration with the Facility Release Planner and any R3 staff) with housing providers in the community to which the offender is being released, to take all available steps to avoid the offender being homeless or being unnecessarily placed in structured or transitional housing upon release.

At the onset of release planning, the offender's placement shall be reviewed, and the offender shall be transferred to the facility closest to his county of release, when necessary to connect the offender to services, support and/or parole as part of his plan, if possible. Once release planning begins, every effort shall be made to avoid transferring the offender to a different facility or counselor, except as necessary to support the release plan. When a transfer is unavoidable, the unit team counselor who was working with the offender on the release plan shall ensure that information about the release plan is promptly made available to the new unit team counselor, who shall continue with the release planning process.

The release plan shall be made available to the parole division, through automation, and through communication from the Facility Release Planner. Parole staff shall have input into the release plan, and be involved in discussions about the offender's reentry.

Information about the proposed release plan shall be conveyed to victim services and the Kansas Parole Board as appropriate and necessary to ensure the plan is reviewed by these offices, and to provide them with an opportunity for input.

Notice shall be made to public officials in keeping with the procedures set out below, and public officials shall have the opportunity for input regarding release (in indeterminate sentences) or conditions of release. Notice to the counties shall include a request for information about any pending unlodged detainer regarding the offenders scheduled for release.

Prior to any offender's release to post-incarceration supervision, the conditions of release shall be reviewed with and explained to the offender, and facility and field staff shall communicate as needed to ensure that release preparations are coordinated and understood by the involved parties.

Offenders who are discharging their sentences at their upcoming release shall have access to release planning services if they choose to participate in them.

For all releasing offenders, violent offender registration required by IMPP 11-118 shall be addressed with the offender, and the items on the facility's release checklist shall be reviewed with the offender as applicable.

Each facility shall establish policies, practices and procedures as necessary to support risk-reduction-based release planning pursuant to this policy.
